Makuhari New Urban Center Area

Makuhari Messe

The Makuhari Messe consists of "International Exhibition Halls," "International Conference Halls," and the "Makuhari Event Hall," and was constructed in 1989 to serve as a representation of the level of Japan's convention facilities. The 11 exhibition halls span an area of 72,000 m<sup>2</sup>, and are capable of hosting all types of events. The 22 conference halls are used in a wide variety of gatherings such as international meetings, workshops and seminars. The event hall is also capable of housing 90,000 people and is utilized as an expansive venue for a multitude of events.

QVC Marine Field

An Awe-Inspiring Space

The QVC Marine Field is the home field for the "Chiba Lotte Marines" franchise. The foul lines measure 99.5m, the line from the home plate to the fence is 122 m, and the stadium has a seating capacity of roughly 30,000. The field wing seats protrude into the foul grounds, permitting spectators to observe their players in action, up close. The stadium can also be converted into an American Football field, or a venue for outdoor concerts. Furthermore, the facility was the first in Japan to implement light fixtures that line the circumference of the field.

Inage Sengen Shrine

An Ancient Shrine to Worship Mt. Fuji

The origins of Inage Sengen Shrine are said to be from the year 808 during the reign of Emperor Heizei, when the spirit of the deity enshrined at Fujisan Hongu Sengentaisha in modern-day Omiya, Fujinomiya City, Shizuoka Prefecture, was divided and re-enshrined at its current location.

It can be seen from ancient records that since the year 1180, when Minamoto no Yoritomo sent Tane'yori Tou as an envoy to give offerings and pray for continued luck in the fortunes of war, Tsunetane Chiba and generations of the Chiba clan after him worshipped at this shrine.

When the shrine was rebuilt in 1187, the ground was formed into the shape of Mt. Fuji and three paths to the shrine were built in the image of the mountain's climbing routes, with the shrine facing Mt. Fuji from across Tokyo Bay.

Chiba Shrine

Chiba's Myoken (God of the North Star)

Chiba Shrine is a nationally revered and respected shrine for the homage it pays to "Chiba's God of the North Star." The enshrined deity—the divine spirit of the North Star, or Polaris—is worshipped for its role in determining the fates of human lives, as well as bestowing good luck to those who pray at the shrine. The "Sonjiden," which is the only romon-style "bunreiha" (a shrine which houses a fragment of a particular deity's god) of its kind, was completed in 2000, 1000 years after the temple was first opened. This beautifully vermilion-lacquered shrine is a must-see for all visitors to Chiba City.

Yukari no le · Inage

Communicating the Architecture of Resorts from the Taisho Era

Numerous cottages and villas, which served as summer resorts during the Taisho and Showa eras, used to dot the beaches which extended along present today's HWY 14. The "Yukari no le" is one of these resorts, and once hosted the Aishinkura Fukeutsu couple (Fuji—from "The Last Emperor"—'s biological younger brother) for approximately six months.

Citizens' Gallery · Inage

Former Villa of Denbe Kamiya

Chiba Citizens' Gallery Inage is a gallery with a garden that brings to mind the days when Inage was a seaside getaway. Artwork created by citizens and exhibitions organized by the gallery can be seen here. A Registered Tangible Cultural Property of Japan, the Western-style house that was the villa of Denbe Kamiya, the founder of "Denki Bran", is also on the premises and open to the public.

Historical Site / Cultural Assets

Dainichi Temple (Chiba House Five-Tiered Family Grave)

Dainichi Temple was originally constructed by Chiba Yoritane during the Kamakura Period in the Matsudo - Mabashi area, and was later moved to Chiba by his son, Tadamune. However, the temple was soon lost to a fire during the war, and was once again relocated from Toricho to its current location. The premises are now home to the Chiba Family's 16 five-tiered family graves.

Aoki Konyo's Sweet Potato Research Farm

In 1735, Aoki Konyo began his work on cultivating sweet potatoes in the Kanto region. Their planting then quickly spread throughout Makuhari, allowing the people to survive the famines of the Tenmei and Tempo eras. A memorial has been erected at the research farm, and it has been designated as a historical site by the prefecture.

Onari-Kaido Road

Onari Kaido was built some 400 years ago, by the order of Tokugawa Ieyasu (in pursuit of his hobby, hiking), where he commanded nearby farmers to work day and night on its construction. Along the road, one can see the remains of an ancient tea house which was used as a rest area at the time, as well as a nagayamon (Japanese-style bungalow)—which were preserved to serve as a reminder of eras past.

Chiba Temple (Chiba City's Longest Standing Temple)

Chiba Temple is the city's longest standing temple, and was erected in 709. The following year, the Ily tree planted on the premises flourished to a size larger than those found in Kamakura's Tsurugaoka-hachimangu Shrine. It now towers at a height of 30 m, and boasts a circumference of 8 m.
